विषय: Clarification regarding GIS and Hybrid Switchgear type test validity for the Distribution sector-reg.

महोदया/ महोदय,

You may be aware that Central Electricity Authority has published the "Guidelines for the Validity Period of Type Test(S) Conducted on Major Electrical Equipment in Power Transmission, 2020". Further, CEA has revised the above mentioned guidelines and has issued the "Guidelines for the Type Tests Validity for Major Equipment of Power Sector, 2022".

2. The type test validity for GIS and Hybrid Switchgear under the section "transmission system (66 kV and above)" and under the section "distribution system (33 kV and below)" has been mentioned as 15 years and 5 years respectively in the revised guidelines.

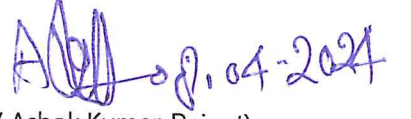

3. Further, the guidelines for the Type Tests validity for major equipment of Power sector has undergone revision in 2023. The type test validity for GIS and Hybrid Switchgear in these guidelines under the heading "distribution sector (33 kV and below)" has not been mentioned. Therefore, as of now the guidelines is silent on Type test validity for GIS and Hybrid Switchgear indicated under the heading "distribution Sector".

4. Since type test Validity for GIS and Hybrid Switchgear has been defined as 15 years for under the heading Transmission Sector (66 kV and above) while it is silent in case of Distribution Sector (33 KV and below). This is creating ambiguity in the Type test validity for GIS and Hybrid Switchgear. Various representations are being received in CEA to clarify the type test validity for the GIS and Hybrid Switchgear under the heading of "distribution sector".

5. It is worthwhile to note that the equipment categorization is not based on the ownership of the assets e.g. 66 kV voltage level in Gujarat is under Transmission system, while the same in Delhi is under Discoms. Thus, the area of operation of Discom and the asset levels to be developed and maintained are governed by the conditions of the license. Thus, as per the standards the tests are on the equipment and not on the basis of the assets owned by the particular utility.

6. In view of above, the competent authority has decided that type test validity for the GIS and Hybrid Switchgear for complete power/electricity sector should be kept uniform to avoid the ambiguity and to keep the process simple. Therefore, type test validity for complete power sector i.e. Generation, Transmission and Distribution may be considered as 15 years.
